Note

The notice of location calls for an East and West claim, when in reality it is a North and South one. The locator was apparently unacquainted with the points of the compass. The ledge on which this claim is located can be easily traced for the distance of at least $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles - the claim is the 1st north extension of the Oro Plata, a well known mine on which several thousands of dollars have been expended in developments. That the ground surveyed is the same as intended to be described in notice of location is beyond any doubt.
